Association building of Mäenpää was completed in 1908. The impressive building is located on the ridge of the hill near the center of Punkalaidun.

The tower of the house has a good view of the beautiful river valley.

The house has been used as a cinema in the past, which you can still see in the interior of the house.

The house can be rented and the Workers' Association of Mäenpää organizes various cultural events.
The town hall of Punkalaidun was built in 1923. The two-storey wooden building made in the Art Nouveau style is very impressive. Its second floor is covered by a wide attic roof and the roof ridge is decorated with a small tower.

In 1992-1998 the municipal building underwent a thorough renovation. The theme of the renovation plan was "to the era of modern technology, in terms of the old history" i.e. the so called "modern historic result".
THE CHURCH

The church of Punkalaidun was consecrated in 1774. The church is built from the locals’ own trees and it has undergone several renovations, the most recent being in 1983.

PAPPILA

The church is led by the so-called river bridge to Punkalaidun's vicarage. Its neo-renaissance style main building was completed in 1897. The vicarage is still inhabited and a lot of activities are organized there, especially in the spirit of educating children and young people.
